

Introduction

Investors want to set up a new fast food business branch in the city of Toronto. They want to know what would a good location to set up their business. They want it to be near at least two universities, near the city center and student campus ideally in a high transit area. The branch is big enough to attract customers so they don't mind the competition in the area.